Pragmatic Guide to Gr

“Program close to the problem domain.”

—Andrew Hunt and David Thomas
The Pragmatic Programmer, tip 17

A faint, grayscale background image of a brick building. The word "usbank" is visible at the top of the building's facade. The image is slightly out of focus, creating a subtle texture.

“We just need to add this one case.”

–Product Owner

Testing in Production

A grayscale photograph of a city skyline, featuring a mix of modern high-rise residential buildings and older industrial structures with visible smokestacks. The buildings are densely packed, creating a layered effect. The foreground is slightly out of focus, while the background buildings are more distinct.

“Instead of bringing in a new source let’s see if we can use our existing data to categorize the data. We will build a model to test this idea out.”

Data Science pattern

A black and white photograph of a rugged mountain range. The peaks are covered in patches of snow and dark rock. The lighting creates strong shadows, emphasizing the texture of the mountain faces. The foreground shows more rocky terrain.

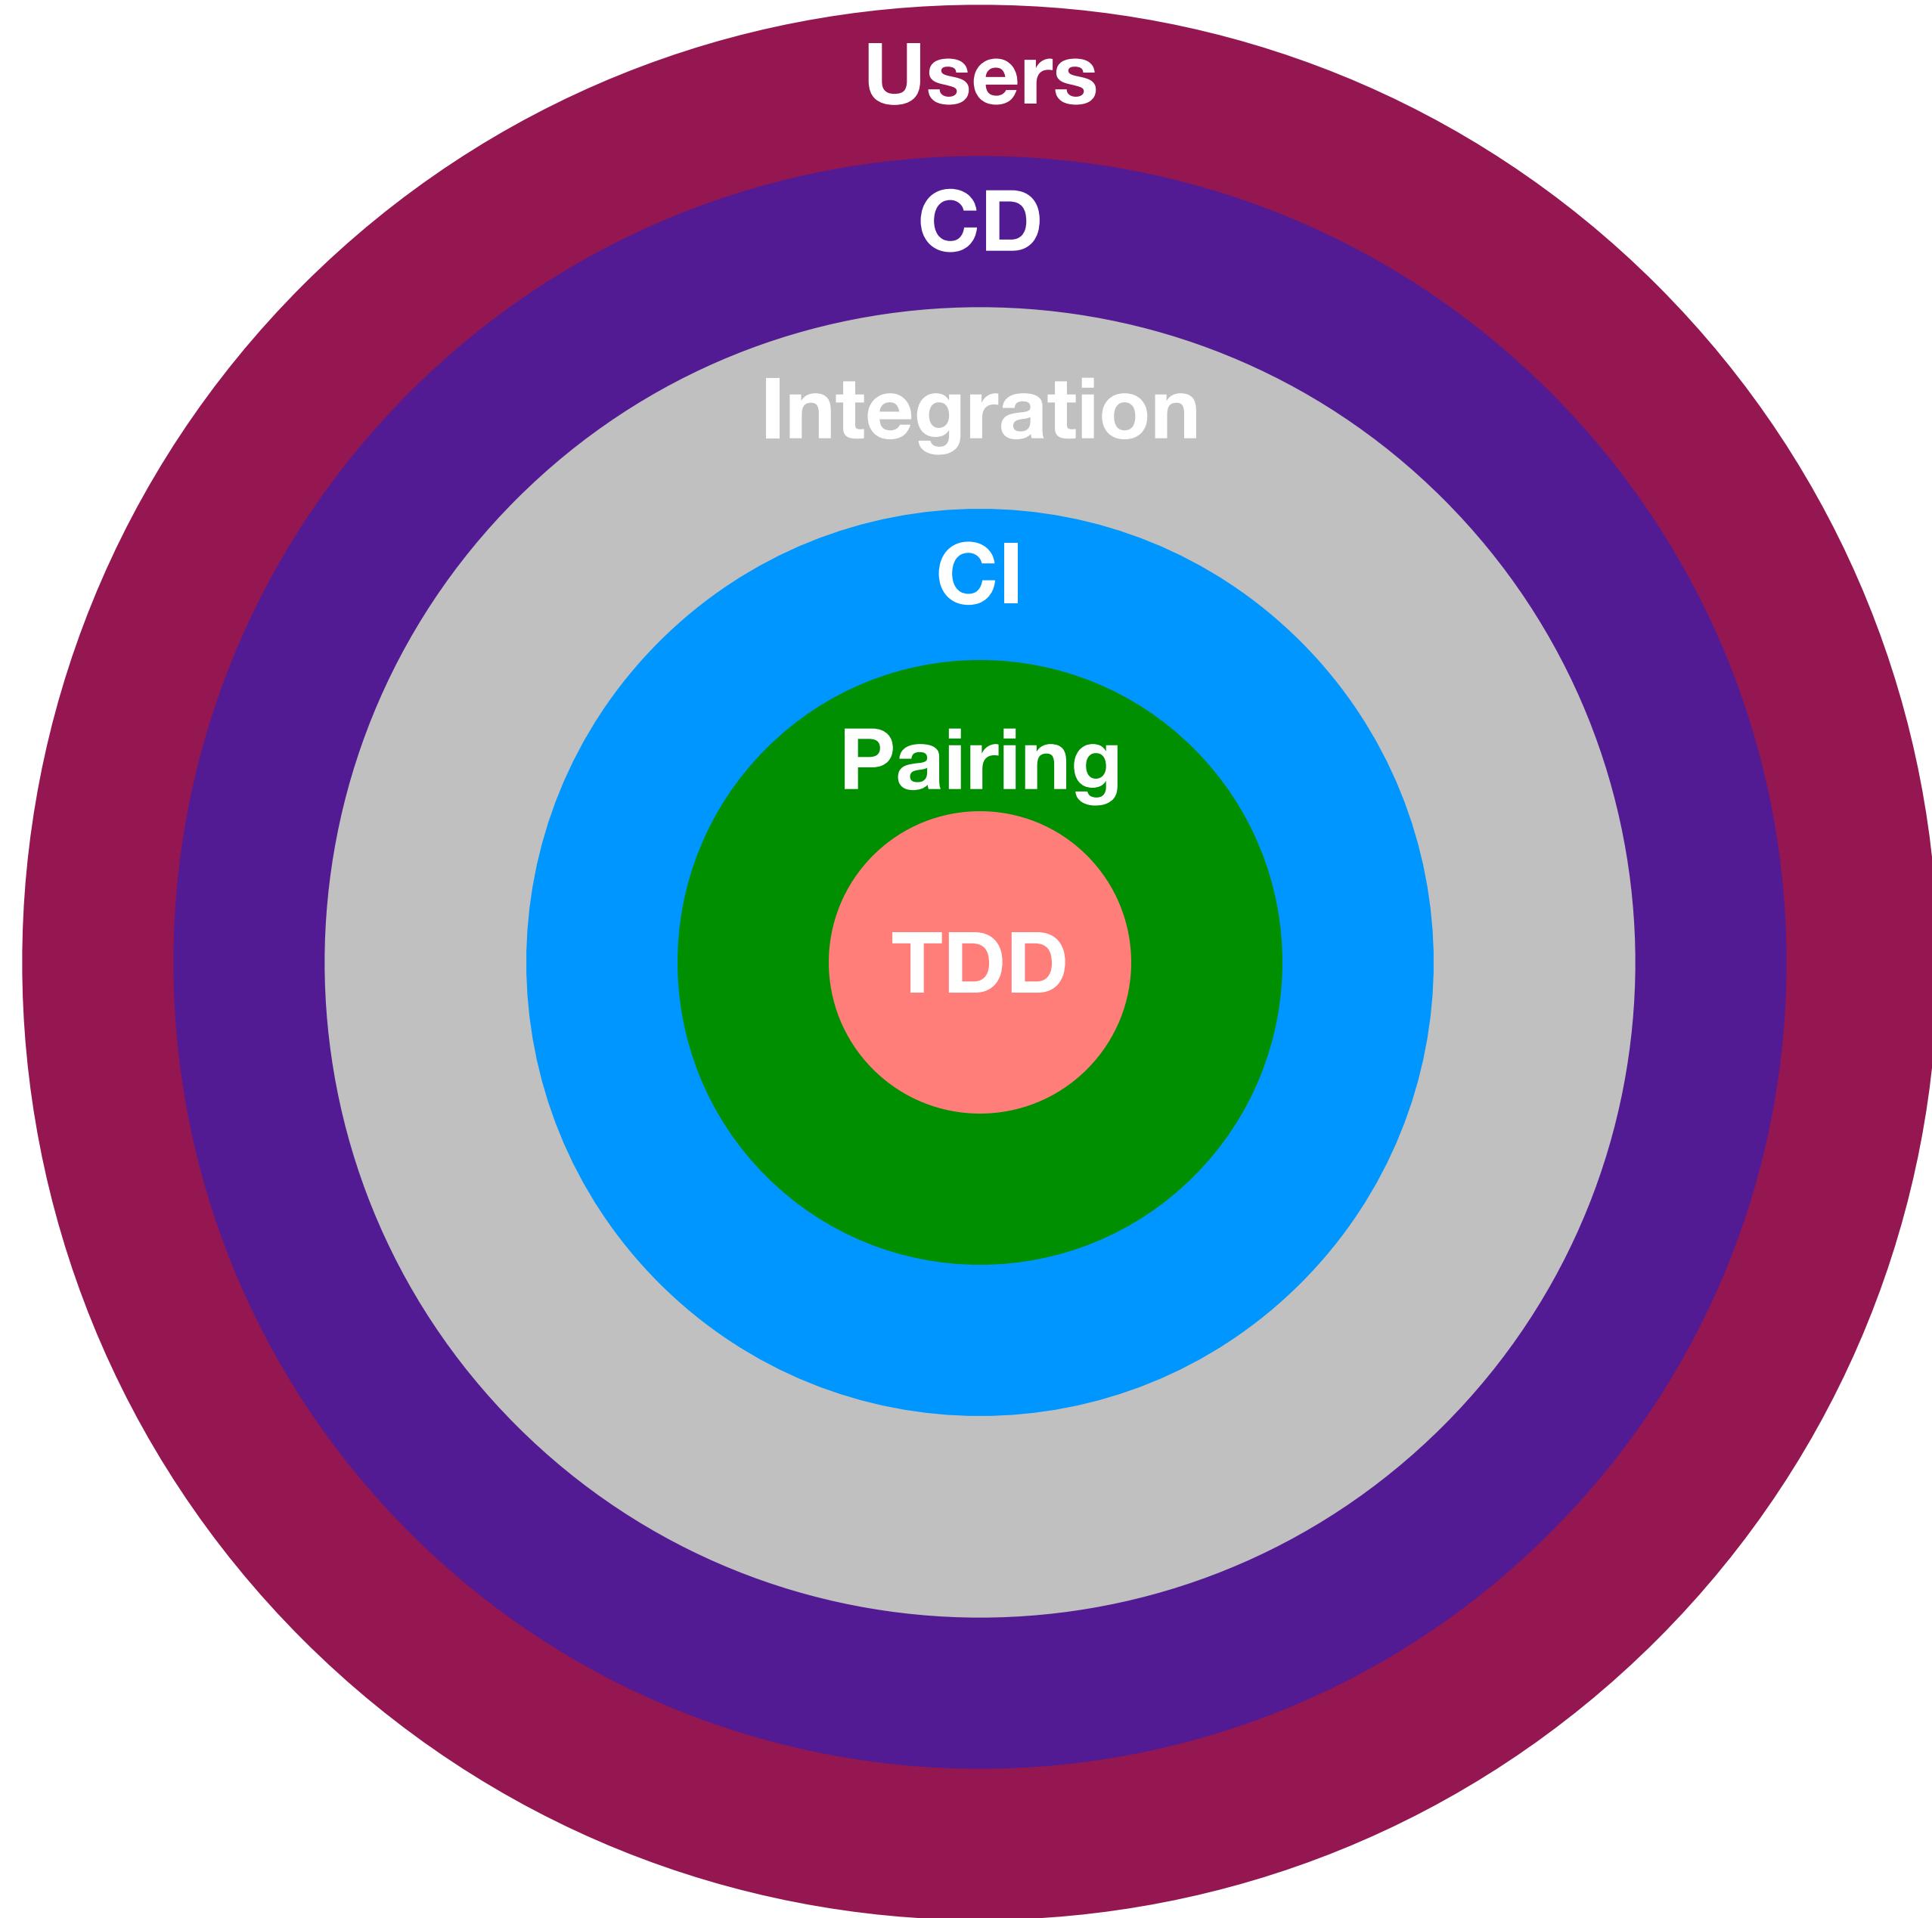

“The goal of a model is to provide a simple low-dimensional summary of a dataset.”

-Hadley Wickham and Garrett Grolemund
R for Data Science, chapter 18

“Do you know Access?”

-Product Owner

A grayscale photograph of a person's hands typing on a laptop keyboard. The laptop screen displays a dark interface with the words "Ship It!" in a large, light-colored font. The background is slightly blurred.

“Integrate often, build, and test continuously.”

–Jared Richardson and William Gwaltney Jr.
